Community Comments

- The President of the R.C.F.A. stated that someone was excessed who could provide special services versus an independent contractor that is being recommended for approval on the agenda. She asked the Board to evaluate the person who was excessed to provide these services. She further questioned the correctness of the probationary appointment of a .3 Math teacher as it appears on the agenda. (Ms. Carney agreed and noted that the appointment would be corrected on the next agenda. She also stated that the services being contracted out for are not the same and include augmented evaluations.)
- Is the estimated amount of $9,914,028.25 to contract with BOCES the total or just a segment? (Mr. Ivanoff stated that it is only for the shared services contract portion.)
- What is the cost associated with the consultant agreement with Patrick Harris? (Per Ms. Carney, the cost associated is not to exceed $40,000.)
- Did the steps go up as well as the Masters on the salary advancements as shown in To's and From's? (Per Ms. Carney, these are people who were hired mid-year and as further mentioned by the President of the R.C.F.A., the teachers' union had negotiated deferred increments.)

-Does the high school still mail out the opt-out letter for students who don't want to provide their names, etc. to military recruiters? (Ms. Carney stated that she would get information as to what procedure is being followed at the high school.)

-A parent of a special needs child expressed concern on the self-contained classrooms now at Aquebogue (formerly at Riley). She stated that the program took twelve years to develop and requested that the Board consider returning the classrooms to Riley. (Ms. Carney explained that the decision was not an easy one and was based on keeping the program intact as it was by also addressing the extreme overcrowding at Riley and concern to limit the movement of the children.)
